8. (U) Intelligence: See Inclosure 1, Intelligence.

9. (C) Missions: Headquarters I Field Force, Vietnam directed the 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division to seize and hold vital terrain and installations in VUNG RO Pass and Highway 1 between VUNG RO Bay and the 2d Korean Marine Brigade AO, to provide protection for engineer work parties in the bay area along the line of communications, to relieve the 2d Korean Marine Brigade in the area south of TUY HOA, and to be prepared to exploit B-52 strikes. Later in the operation the mission was expanded to include conducting search and destroy operations between KY LO Valley and VUNG RO Bay and protecting civilians during the initial stages of the rice harvest at TUY AN.

10. (C) Concept of Operation: Operation JOHN PAUL JONES was conducted in three phases. See Inclosure 2, Operation Schematics.

a. Phase I (21 July - 30 July): This phase consisted of air-mobile and ground assaults by two battalions in the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area to seize vital terrain and installations, the conduct of saturation patrolling and the establishment of security for engineer work parties in the area.

(RC: MACV J3-32) (U)

b. Phase II (30 July - 15 August): This phase consisted of a one battalion exploitation of two B-52 strikes west of SONG CAU and a two battalion exploitation of four B-52 strikes west of DONG TRE. Following search and destroy operations in the area, the battalions were extracted leaving two reconnaissance platoons to stay behind forces. Also during this phase, one battalion continued providing security and conducting search and destroy operations in the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area.

c. Phase III (15 August - 5 September): This phase consisted of relieving the 2d ROK Marine Bde in the area south of TUY HOA with two battalions, continuing the mission in the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area, conducting search and destroy operations northwest of TUY HOA, and providing protection to the civilians in the initial stages of the rice harvest.

11. (C) Execution:

a. The Brigade began deployment from the DAK TO area by C-130 aircraft on 15 July and closed into TUY HOA on 21 July. A total of 181 sorties were utilized.

b. Phase I: On 21 July this phase commenced when one company conducted a night helicopter infiltration into two landing zones north of VUNG RO Bay. The company then moved overland to secure vital terrain objectives, the north end of a railroad tunnel and two proposed landing zones. At 0730 hours 23 June, the 2/502 Inf (-) made airmobile assaults on the two secured landing zones. Simultaneously, the 1/327 Inf conducted a ground assault seizing objectives in the northern portion of the area of operation, after making a ground approach march through the 2d ROK Marine Bde. All Brigade objectives were secured when the two battalions linked up on Highway 1 at 1335 hours. During the period 23 through 30 July, the two battalions conducted search and destroy operations without significant enemy contact. On 30 July, the 2/327 Inf, which had been I FFORCEV reserve, relieved the two battalions in the VUNG RO Pass area and assumed the mission of securing the LOC.

c. Phase II: At the beginning of this phase, the 1st Brigade, 101st Abn Div was alerted to be prepared to enter Operation EMERSON under the OPCON of the 1st Cav Div; however, Operation EMERSON was cancelled. At dawn on 2 August, two B-52 strikes, which were previously planned for Operation EMERSON were executed west of SONG CAU. The 2/502 Inf conducted airmobile assaults directly into the strike area within twenty minutes following the completion of the B-52 strikes. The 2/502 Inf conducted search and destroy operations in the area with no significant enemy contact. On 3 August the 1st Brigade was designated I FFORCEV reserve, resulting in the 2/502 Inf being extracted from the area of operation and returning to TUY HOA South. Brigade units conducted extensive training and refitting in preparation for future combat operations until 8 August when the 1/327 Inf conducted an airmobile assault west of DONG TRE to exploit four B-52 strikes which took place between 1200 and 1255 hours. Again, within twenty minutes following the strikes, an airmobile assault was conducted directly into the northern portion of the strike area. The 1/327 Inf swept south with only light contact made with the enemy but there were indications that the enemy was moving west. In an attempt to block the enemy's western movement, on 9 August the 2/502 Inf conducted an airmobile assault to the west of the strike area and swept eastward and linked up with the 1/327 Inf. Both battalions continued search and destroy operations in the area until their extraction on 14 and 15 August. The reconnaissance platoons of each of the battalions remained in the area as stay behind forces to conduct reconnaissance and surveillance missions.

d. Phase III: On 16 August the 2/8 Cav came under the OPCON of the 1st Bde, 101st Abn Div and moved to DONG TRE. Between 16 and 18 August, the 1/327 Inf and the 2/502 Inf relieved the 2d ROK Marine Bde in place. On 17 August the 2/8 Cav conducted an airmobile assault and swept southeast toward DONG TRE. The mission of the 2/327 Inf in the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area was assumed by TF Bravo, which was composed of C 2/502 Inf and A 2/17 Cav. One company of the 2/327 Inf moved to DONG TRE as the Brigade immediate action force. On 18 August the 2/327 Inf (-) infiltrated by air to DONG TRE and began an overland covert movement to the east and southeast to sweep through the area toward TUY AN where it would perform the mission of protecting the rice harvest in that district. On 21 August, the third company of 2/327 Inf moved to DONG TRE. Having received no significant contacts in its AO on 22 August, the 2/8 Cav conducted an airmobile assault west of DONG TRE to exploit intelligence information received by the stay behind forces of the 1/327 Inf and 2/502 Inf. The assault was preceded by a three minute saturation CBU air strike in the vicinity of the objective area and napalm and strafing at H-Hour. No LZ preps were utilized. One company of the 2/8 Cav and the reconnaissance elements set up blocking positions while the 2/8 Cav (-) attacked northwest. There was little enemy contact during the operation, however, four VC/NVA were KIA (BC) and a cache of 400 hand grenades was located. On 24 August, C 1/327 Inf was deployed to NINH HOA as an I FFORCEV immediate action force to assist in the defense of the base area and associated units of the 9th Inf Div (ROK A). On 3 September, a second company with a Tac CP element from the 1/327 Inf and an artillery battery (-) were moved by air to NINH HOA to reinforce due to increased enemy contact. The 2/327 Inf continued to sweep from DONG TRE toward TUY AN until 26 August when intelligence sources indicated an enemy concentration in an area between TUY AN and TUY HOA. The 2/8 Cav, 2/327 Inf, 1/47 Inf Regt (ARVN) and MIKE forces encircled the suspected enemy location by airmobile assaults and overland movement and closed on converging axes. This converging attack produced sporadic small unit enemy contact. On 27 August the 1/22 Inf came under the OPCON of the 1st Bde, 101st Abn Div and on 30 August relieved TF Bravo of securing the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area. On 30 and 31 August the 2/502 Inf (-) conducted airmobile assaults to join the converging attack from the southwest to cut off enemy routes of egress. Operation JOHN PAUL JONES ended on 5 September when the Brigade began Operation SEWARD to protect the TUY HOA Valley rice harvest.

12. (C) Results:

a. The 1st Bde, 101st Abn Div accomplished its mission of securing the VUNG RO Bay/VUNG RO Pass area and the LOC from VUNG RO Bay to TUY HOA, and conducting search and destroy operations in the TUY HOA and DONG TRE areas.

b. The following losses were inflicted on the enemy during the operation: 140 VC/NVA KIA (BC), 34 VC/NVA KIA (EST), 69 VC/NVA KBA (BC), 101 VC/NVA KBA (EST), 11 NVAC, 29 VCC, 384 VCS, and 2 ralliers. In addition, 56 individual and crew served weapons, ammunition and other equipment were captured.

c. Friendly losses during the operation were as follows: 23 KIA, 132 WIA.

13. (U) Administrative Matters:

a. Personnel and Administration: See Inclosure 3, Personnel and Administration.

b. Logistics: See Inclosure 4, Logistics.

14. (C) Special Equipment and Techniques:

a. During the operation, several "lightning bug" missions were conducted. Lightning bug operations are conducted during the hours of darkness utilizing an observer helicopter and gunships. The observer aircraft, utilizing starlight devices, scans an area of suspected VC/NVA activity. Upon sighting a target, the lighting system is directed at the target and the gunships attack the enemy position. It was found that utilizing starlight scopes on each side of the aircraft to scan an area of operation prior to employing the search light enhanced surprise and enabled the lightning bug crews to observe more ground activity. All missions were coordinated with the ground commander in the area of operation in which the mission was flown; personnel from the infantry unit operated the starlight scopes.

b. In order to effectively employ CS agents or flamethrowers, teams were made available at Brigade level to be employed on an "on-call" basis. A helicopter rigged for CS employment and charged flamethrowers were maintained on a thirty minute standby.

15. (C) Commander's Analysis (Lessons Learned):

a. In the exploitation of B-52 missions, elements of the Brigade conducted airmobile assaults directly into the strike areas within twenty minutes following the bombing. This method of exploiting strikes was effective and reduced the time required to get combat troops into the objective area. By conducting assaults in this manner, the dazed enemy is given little time to reorganize or evacuate the area.

b. The employment of "stay behind" forces was used to capitalize on the enemy's tendency to return to the base areas after US forces have departed. Following the exploitation of B-52 strikes, the battalions were extracted from the area leaving two reconnaissance platoons, with seven days rations, as "stay behind" forces. After three days the platoons reported infiltration of small groups of enemy back into the area. The area was assaulted again by US forces, utilizing the "stay behind" forces to secure LZ's and block routes of exfiltration from the area.

c. Since our basic problem is one of target acquisition we restricted routine use of fires primarily to induce the enemy to remain in our area of operations and secondarily to cut down on questionable ammunition expenditure and the resultant logistical support. It appears to be poor strategy to routinely use N&F fires at night as a defensive technique when the Brigade has superiority in force, reserves, mobility and ammunition. N&F fires should be used to interdict enemy egress routes, known assembly areas and when the enemy forces outnumber ours and are prepared to attack.

d. When too many troops become involved in the evacuation their WIA and KIA, tactical momentum can be lost. Casualties have been incurred as a result of soldiers attempting to aid their companions, only to become casualties themselves. The appropriate action is to continue attacking the enemy, driving him off, and clearing the field for casualty evacuation. Troops only slightly wounded should be required to continue to perform their duties until the action is concluded and their services can be spared. The walking wounded should be used when possible to assist the seriously wounded until aidmen are available.

e. Frequently, when reconnaissance elements make contact, enemy forces exfiltrate from the area as the airmobile immediate action force is being lifted into the area. When possible, a ground immediate action force should infiltrate into an area on foot at the same time the reconnaissance elements are injected into the area. This permits a ground force to be present to immediately exploit enemy contacts.

f. Booby traps have inflicted multiple casualties in cases where troops were "bunched up". The soldier must become an expert in detecting booby traps, and must be impressed with the fact that proper interval must be maintained in combat formations.

g. Clandestine entry into the battle area can be accomplished by moving elements during the hours of darkness. Units up to company size can effectively remain undetected until they have reached their destination or objective area.

16. (C) Recommendations:

a. That a minimum of four flyable CH-47 helicopters be provided to the Brigade when supporting artillery is to be moved by an air LOC and forward logistical supply points established where no land LOC is available.

b. That all medevac helicopters be provided a reliable winch or hoist capability for extracting wounded personnel from densely wooded or mountainous areas where landing zones are not available.

c. That LZ preparation not be habitually used, as it is an indication to the enemy that we are going to make a heliborne assault in the area and gives him an opportunity to prepare to assault US troops landing in the area or flee the location.

d. That the use of ARVN, CIDG and other indigenous para military forces (RF and FF units) in cooperation and coordination with US forces continue to be maximized to conserve or augment the forces available to a US unit commander as well as to improve training, aggressiveness and confidence of the Vietnamese units.

Inclosure 1 (Intelligence) to Combat Operations After Action Report, Operation JOHN PAUL JONES

1. (U) Weather and Terrain:

a. The weather over the operational area was not what was expected. It rained heavily on approximately 15 days, whereas only 8-10 days of rain were expected. Winds were much stronger than the 10 knots anticipated. On eight days winds gusted over 25 knots. Flying weather also did not come up to expectations with the expected 40 good days for the operation only materializing to approximately 33. Even the temperature was not expected. On 3 days the low was in the 60's whereas a low of 74° was predicted. These unexpected changes in the weather, although potential hindrances to our operations, had a minimum effect. However, it did provide the VC with more hours of concealment than anticipated.

b. The terrain was as expected. Open rice paddies near Tuy Hoa ran into mountains and thick forests to the south and west. These conditions aided the VC in concealing large rest camps and base areas. The terrain was not as much of an obstacle to us as anticipated. We succeeded in uncovering numerous base camps and rest areas.

2. (C) Analysis:

a. The Ky Lo Valley and District Boundary between Tuy Hoa are major VC/NVA base areas. The NVA forces continually return to these established areas upon departure of US forces. NVA forces move from base area to base area along established routes. When we sweep through their areas they break down into small groups, both to avoid detection and because of becoming fragmented and disorganized by our forces.

b. The VC continually tax the local farmers and conduct their own clandestine harvesting throughout the TAOR.

c. All indications are that NVA and VC forces intend to conduct both coordinated and independent operations during the coming rice harvest in order to secure this vital commodity.

d. VC forces in the area have begun and will undoubtedly intensify efforts to interfere with the upcoming elections.

e. NVA and VC forces suffer from lack of food and adequate medical facilities. They are particularly vulnerable to malaria. Arms, equipment and ammunition are adequate for the type warfare they wage, bearing in mind they have no intent to engage in sustained combat.

3. (C) Lessons Learned:

a. The tactics of forces in the TAOR were to avoid decisive contact at all times. This necessitated committing large numbers of troops to encircle the enemy in an effort to destroy him. Meeting contacts produced the largest number of enemy losses.

b. Photo Missions:

(1) During the operation 17 photo missions were received which were applicable to the area. There were 18 Red Haze missions flown and 22 visual reconnaissance reports submitted which reflected positive intelligence.

(2) Substantial intelligence was received from the 55th MI Det (Nha Trang) in the form of trail, LZ, and defense studies. This unit is presently maintaining these studies for the entire II Corps area on a continuous basis.

(3) The limitations of photo intelligence were apparent in that photography of base camp areas did not reveal any signs of their presence. A survey of the items reported by photo interpretation reports shows that the vast majority of sightings were in relatively open areas while sightings in areas of heavy tree canopy were rare and uncertain as to identification.

(4) Red Haze has partially offset the limitations imposed by the tree canopy, but the scarcity of significant sightings coupled with reports from

CONFIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIAL

POW's indicates that enemy units are probably aware of our efforts and have restricted the use of fires to counter our detection efforts. The last four Red Haze missions have been scheduled in order to coincide with reported cooking times of the units, but the results to date are inconclusive. 10

(5) Where photographic coverage was not available, visual reconnaissance was able to fill in the gap. Here again this reconnaissance effort was restricted by the heavy tree canopy.

(6) In order to provide for the timely acquisition of basic photographic coverage it is necessary to plan and request photo coverage well in advance of moving into an area. The limitations imposed by the current availability of aircraft and facilities require a lead time in excess of seven days in order to obtain photography of a new area.

c. The immediate deployment of IPW teams to the point of enemy capture has proven to be a valuable tactical asset; however, units must take care to insure that prisoners are at the designated point for interrogation. Wasted time only deprives other units of the brigade of this capability.

d. The use of daily liaison visits to CIDG Camps and District Headquarters within the TAOR has done much toward supplementing the intelligence picture.

e. Contact was frequently established by employing patrol teams into their areas based on reports from reliable sources. Exploiting the contacts gained requires improvement.

4. (C) COMSEC:

a. Organic COMSEC: A total of 9,955 transmissions were monitored. During JOHN PAUL JONES, 4 nets were monitored: Bde Op/Intel, Admin/Log, and Bde Command nets. During this period there was a vast improvement in the field of communication security within the Brigade nets.

b. Attached COMSEC: A total of 3,617 transmissions were monitored by an attached COMSEC team from the 313th Radio Research Bn. Of this total, 792 transmissions were covered on the command nets of 1/327, 2/327, and 2/502 Inf, and 534 transmissions (90 hours) were covered on the Bde switchboard.

1. (U) VC/NVA initial Order of Battle within Brigade TAOR: VC/NVA dispositions at the beginning of Operation JOHN PAUL JONES were as indicated below:

a. The 95th and 18B Regiments were confirmed as being present in PHU YEN Province in July. The 18B was believed to be deployed in the eastern portion of the province, with the 95th further to the west.

b. The 95th Battalion, 68th Arty Regt, NVA was confirmed in the province in July.

c. The 85th VC Local Force Battalion was believed to be located in the area of Song Cau.

d. Nine district and local force companies were believed to be located in the province, with a strength of 70 per company.

2. (O) Order of Battle Findings and Summary in Operational Area:

a. Summary:

(1) As a result of exploitation of B-52 strikes, and sweeps through known VC base areas within the operational area contact with elements of the 561st (95th) Arty Bn was made in the Ky Lo Valley, and an NVA captain assigned to the 5th Division was captured. Sweeps of the area to the east of Dong Tre and Cung Son forced the VC to disperse into small elements to avoid contact. Scattered contacts with VC and NVA forces were made during the sweep.

(2) Units identified by prisoners and agents as being in the Brigade area of operation were the 561st Arty Bn and 5th Division, both located in the Ky Lo Valley.

(3) Constant resistance on a small scale was met by the Brigade in Tuy An District, along the Cai River, where a large amount of rice is grown, indicating that the VC are in need of the rice in this area, and are trying to obtain it despite US forces.

to obtain on short notice. S-5 will requisition and keep on hand some slings for this purpose.

d. In extracting refugees, cattle, and rice from the remote areas in which they are often encountered, a strain is placed on the already heavily taxed, supporting air transportation units. Although no simple solution, short of providing more aircraft, seems feasible, through close coordination between the Brigade Aviation Officer and personnel of the S-5 Section this problem has been minimized.

Inclosure 7 (Psychological Warfare) to Combat Operations After Action Report, Operation JOHN PAUL JONES (U)

1. (U) Psychological Objective: Psychological Warfare activities were oriented and directed toward enemy units and friendly civilians in the operational area.

g. 3 - 4 September: On 3 September B/2/320th Arty displaced by CV-2 and CH-47's to BP987829 in direct support of the 1/327th Inf (-). Four
(4) howitzers were displaced for this contingency. On 4 September A/2/320th Arty displaced to CQ219411. On 4 September two (2) howitzers from A/2/320th Arty were displaced to CQ079347 and joined the remaining two (2) howitzers from B/2/320th Arty forming D/2/320th Arty (Provisional) with the mission of direct support of SO A/1/327th Inf. A/2/320th Arty (-) had mission of reinforcing D/2/320th Arty (Provisional).

3. (C) Problem Areas:

a. Shooting at topographical crests when slopes on reverse side away from observers may be occupied by our forces should be avoided. In adjustment of fire, a round could clear the crest and travel several thousand more meters on its natural trajectory, thereby possibly landing in a friendly AO. Extreme caution should be emphasized when shooting near topographical crests.

b. Executives minimum QE should be computed with care. The range to mask should be checked against the map to insure that the elevation for the actual range to mask is used and not the estimated range. Especially in deep valleys of mountainous areas, the executive should make a more diligent examination of the terrain around his position.

4. (C) Comments:

a. On 21 August a coordinated chemical and Arty attack was conducted on the enemy at CQ160320. Results: the firing by the VC weapons were silenced and allowed the unit to disengage to allow evacuation of friendly wounded.

b. A CIDG company from Mai Linh (Advisors Captain J. Zachery and Sergeant M. B. Dooley) had the mission of securing A/2/320th Arty via BQ784806 from 9 - 16 August. The military discipline and esprit displayed by this unit was exceptional. They initiated aggressive patrolling and ambush operations which resulted in the capture of 1 VC, locating one VC KIA (A/2/502d Inf) and retrieved several documents of tactical value. One element and its advisor always remained with the battery while the other went on patrols and ambushes. In contrast to the other 3 CIDG elements who had the same mission, this company displayed a definite desire and willingness to patrol and aggressively pursue the enemy.

c. The artillery liaison section and forward observers sections with the 2/8th Inf, 1st Cav Div, were extremely professional and most cooperative during the operation.

5. (C) Recommendations: That a minimum of four flyable CH-47's be attached/assigned to the brigade to support operations. Movements of artillery could be more smoothly accomplished if organic aircraft were used.
Additionally in most instances the aircraft would be more responsive.
